60-Day Suspension of Liquor License Slated

Capitol News Service
SACRAMENTO — The state Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control has ordered a 60-day suspension of all licensed privileges of the House of Seagram, Inc., on charges of illegal-sales practices, and provided for a full six-month suspension if there are further violations within three years.

Edward J. Kirby, ABC director, said the House of Seagram stipulated to the truth of the 22-count accusation Dec. 4 and waived its rights to a hearing or appeal.

The 22 counts charged the illegal importation of liquor, failure to keep records, file tax returns and pay taxes on the illegal imports, giving free goods and inducements, giving secret rebates, making secret concessions, disrupting orderly marketing conditions and other violations.

THE 60-DAY suspension of the firm's operation in California will take effect Feb. 1.

"It is the purpose of the department to protect the public interest and maintain a stable and healthy industry," Kirby said.

Kirby said certain practices which are prevalent in the industry are illegal and it is his intent to help the industry to function with the limitations imposed by the constitution and the legislature.

The Seagram accusation was filed as part of a continuing investigation of illegal trade practices. Recently a one-day suspension was ordered for the sales privileges of the Pabst Brewing Corporation in Los Angeles and a San Francisco firm, Max Sobel Wholesale Liquors, had its licenses suspended for five days. Charges against the Pabst and Sobel firms involved illegal discounts, rebates, and giving of free goods.

We'll take a mini credit for the skirt.

About when the mini skirt lifted female hemlines and male morale, another revolution was sweeping the garment industry: permanent press fabrics. Real permanent press. Now when a pleat goes into a skirt or a crease into a pair of pants, it's there to stay. You can't shake it out even in the wildest discotheque. Or iron it out in steam.

What turned out to be the key to the process is a chemical intermediate from Union Carbide. It's called glyoxal. Glyoxal is the essential link in the chain of chemical reactions that gives clothes the best permanent press properties. And it has to be glyoxal of a very pure, highly refined grade. With so many people now saying that ironing clothes is a thing of the past, high grade glyoxal seems to be a highly significant contribution.
